Drug Endangered Children are those children who suffer physical/psychological harm or neglect resulting from exposure to illegal drugs, persons under the influence of illegal drugs and/or exposure to dangerous environments where drugs are being manufactured or chemicals used to make drugs are accessible. These harms may include: injury from explosion, fire or exposure to toxic chemicals found at clandestine lab sites; physical abuse; sexual abuse; medical neglect, lack of basic care including failure to provide meals, sanitary and safe living conditions or schooling. These victims are part of a very large population of children whose lives have been seriously and negatively impacted by dangerous drugs.

Presenters have been carefully chosen by the Department of Justice and the National Alliance for Drug Endangered Children (DEC). Topics include the history of the DEC Program; examples of active DEC programs, methamphetamine lab recognition; inherent dangers; investigative techniques to include interview guidelines, the crime scene diagram, evidence collection and specialized methods utilized by the child abuse investigators. Other topics include Child Protective Services response and procedures including the parallel civil investigation, temporary order of custody, forensic interview, medical & psychological exams, issues of concern and drug screening. In addition, the role of prosecutors including application of statutes, combining the investigations, case studies and successful prosecution will also be discussed.

Who Should Attend? Target participants for this conference include federal, state and local law enforcement officers; clandestine lab investigators; victim service providers and officers; prosecutors; victim/victim-witness advocates; child protective services personnel; pediatricians and other health care professionals who provide services to children.

Credits: APOST AND CLE credits will be available.
